LOW VISION AIDS GO HIGH-TECH!

There is nothing essentially new about the fact that "low vision" patients often rely on optical devices that help them maximize what vision they have remaining after corrective lenses, medications, and/or surgery have done all they can. What is new is that the latest generation of low vision patients is displaying a decided preference for high-tech low vision gadgets. For instance, instead of using an ordinary magnifying glass to make small print readable, many are resorting to handheld electronic magnifiers that display images on screens. Similarly, those with smart phones are using mini-programs ("apps") to help them identify colors. The ophthalmologist is a low vision specialist who can recommend any number of low vision aids that help overcome vision limitations.

If you have low vision, seek a complete visual evaluation from an ophthalmologist. At KENTUCKY EYE INSTITUTE, we are educated. trained, and licensed to provide total care of the eyes. Total eve care includes performing comprehensive medical eye examinations, prescribing corrective lenses, diagnosing injuries and disorders of the eye, and using the appropriate medical and surgical procedures necessary for treatment. If you have any questions or would like further information call 606-666-9393. We're located at 540 Jett Drive, Jackson, KY. We specialize in "EYE CARE FOR ALL AGES."

P.S. "Low vision" is defined as vision that is 20/70 or worse that cannot be fully corrected with traditional lenses.
